

„It is the encounters we have with people which make life worth living“

Guy de Maupassant (1850 - 1893)

In 2018 Arved Fuchs entrusted the project to a charitable foundation which now operates the project, also in order to win additional donations and financial support. The foundation and the long-term volunteers form the new I.C.E. team which Arved Fuchs will personally continue to support.

„When we established the I.C.E. initiative in 2007, we were concerned with the interests and the individual experiences of young people. We wanted to campaign for sustainability and for nature conservation and make young people aware of the issue of climate protection. Climate change is a global problem - and this is why the camp has an international character. The young people of today are the decision-makers of tomorrow.

If they learn to understand at an early age that climate protection, the preservation of biodiversity and nature conservation must be, in the broadest sense, elementary demands in order to ensure living space, food and a higher quality of life for an ever-increasing world population - they will have to choose the right path. That is our hope - and that is why we have brought the camp into being. Today a temperature increase of 1° Celsius is already a matter of fact. To protect our planet from irreversible damage, it is necessary to act all the more quicker and radically.

And this now!“

„The basic concept was to sensitize young people for climate issues.“

„In normal school lessons, pupils learn facts about climate change, in a climate camp they are confronted on-site with the effects.“

„All of the participants come to their own conclusions during the camp and transport these back to their countries where they try to get other pupils and friends enthused.“

„EACH SMALL STEP HAS A DEEP SIGNIFICANCE!“

Martina (Language and Realgymnasium Nikolaus Cusanus - Bruneck / Italy)

„Through the ICE-Camp I have won not only a deeper awareness of our nature and its problems, but I have won many new friends and have had unforgettable experiences! Besides this, the camp has shaped me in the sense that I have decided to concern myself with the environment in the future. I started my studies in agricultural sciences this year“

„Through the excursions with experts, I discovered and perceived the high-mountain landscape I am familiar with from a new perspective. It was fascinating to hear the many views on environmental topics of the participants from different countries. Living together over this period of time welded us into a group with many common memories. Overall the camp so confirmed and strengthened my interest on the topic of environment that I am still dealing with this topic in my studies“

Lucia (Hermann-Lietz-School - Hofbieber / Germany)
